Parent Communication Agreement

Contact More Frequently of the transition is a very normal thing to happen. It is important that the agreement is clear between both parties. This will make the transition more smooth and easier for both. Some things to consider are the following are not going to be permanent, they could change over time.

Guidelines

What do you expect to do alone?

When will you ask for help?

When Should a roommate/Friend call the parent?

When is it appropriate for the parent to call you to ask how things are going?

PAY ATTENTION

Feeling sad and anxious is very normal for all first year students, it is actually more rare to not feel anxious or sad. Although changes in behaviors such as: eating habits, sleeping habits, general mood/ communication should NOT be ignored. If this happens you may need to revisit communication guidelines in order to help one another.
